VISITORS AT CAMP MEADE

DRAWN BY W. E. HILL

Mrs. Monahan at Hostess house: "A fine big fella with red hair and blue eyes," is her identification of her son. She forgets whether it's Company A or Regiment B, or something.

The Washington dominie who is not sure the Y. M. C. A. is doing all it should, and has come down to do what he can against the smoking habit, all by himself.

Lieutenant Tripp tries to interest his girl and her aunt in the bulletin board to cover up a bit of cussing in the next room.

The officer below is not looking for a dear one at the train. He's there to see if that damned Baltimore tailor who promised to bring down his uniform has arrived.

The Baltimore trader—"I've seen at least five hundred men who said: 'Come down on pay day and we'll look over your stuff.'"

The last train for Laurel has departed, and Private Hines, whose timetable proves to be three months old, is left with five relatives and Bessie's fiance to put up for the night.

The crowd on the way up from the train.
